CHARIOTT HOUSE

Chariott House is a mixed development of offices and old peoples accommodation. The development reflects the scale and character of adjacent old Almshouses and carries these important aspects through in the new development around the corner onto the Chariott's Place.

The residences are set back slightly from the main line of the office building to form a pedestrian courtyard for Chariott's Charity. The use of pluckley yellow stock brickwork banded with multi red, the three windows, steeply pitched slate roofs and the projecting upper storey all reflect the calm features of the Victorian Almshouses.

The hard landscape details in brick and stone paving, and the sloping surfaces created by the brick gardens all combine to produce scaled development of high quality.
